Born back in 2005 at La Coruna, (Galicia, Spain), the “981Heritage Son Estrella Galicia” has evolved into one of the most influential music festivals in the Spanish calendar. It’s grown year after year without losing its initial aim: providing a platform for the most experimental artists to intimate audiences in unique spaces. Amongst these artists are Giles Peterson, Hudson Mohawke, James Holden, Actress, Hype Williams, Pantha Du Prince, Kode9, Rustie and many more.

Last year the “981Heritage Son Estrella Galicia” looked outside of its hometown of La Coruna in northern Spain and set its international sights on Madrid and London. For it’s second London edition, the “981Heritage Son Estrella Galicia” will land on November 22 at Hackney’s Oval Space, presenting Baths, Dirty Beaches and beGun to East London.

Fresh off the heels of his US tour with Postal Service, LA’s Will Wisenfeld, best known as Baths will be heading up the evening’s performances. Previously heralded by his peers as LA’s new answer to electrónica, classically-trained Baths will be performing his unorthodox and celebrated style of layered electrónica as seen on his new álbum Obsidian.

Montreal based Dirty Beaches led by prolific multi-instrumentalist Alex Zhang Hungtai will be joining Baths on the bill. He’ll be showcasing his unique blend of distorted and experimental rock’n’roll and his throwback to a 1950’s rockabilly aesthetic will turn this into a truly unique evening.

Future garage and synth experimentalist beGun will also be joining the festivities for what will be his debut London performance at the “981Heritage Son Estrella Galicia”. His epic set at the Primavera Sound x Adidas Originals Boiler Room earlier this year showed how he’s one of the most exciting Spanish producers to emerge in recent years.

Look out for the Madrid installments of the “981Heritage Son Estrella Galicia”, in October and December, featuring names including Youth Lagoon, Austra, Baths, Mount Kimbie, Iceage, Za!, Deptford Goth and Daughn Gibson.
